Songkran is Thailand's most famous festival. It is an important event on the Buddhist calendar since this water festival marks the beginning of the traditional Thai New Year. Songkran 2019 in Thailand began on Saturday, April 13 and ended on Monday, April 15 but in AITIS, we celebrated it last 12th of April. The objective of the celebration was to demonstrate the importance of Thai culture and to encourage students' to appreciate the Thai heritage and traditions.

On that day all of the students watched the video that teaches us the importance of water and every drop of it counts. After the break we were called outside to pour water on our principal and teachers' hands to receive blessings from them for the Thai New Year. We ended the Songkran celebration by the most famous aspect which is throwing of water for a short time. The celebration was simple but beautiful!
