

Get answers. Lose the frustration.

Deciding which pain medication to take comes with important questions:

- Will the medication work?
- What about side effects?
- How long will it take to get my pain under control?
- Is there increased risk of addiction?

Not having these answers can be scary – especially if you or someone you love is in pain. When you're suffering from chronic pain, you need your medication to work, without being worried about potentially dangerous side effects. When you rely on a trial-and-error treatment plan, you're at risk for both.

Luckily, you don't have to wait for answers. You can get the Harmonyx Test for Pain at your local pharmacy. With a simple swab, you can learn which medications are more likely to be effective for you – on a personalized level.

Finally...relief.

There are a number of medications available for chronic pain – and different people react to them in different ways.

Pain affects more Americans than diabetes, heart disease, and cancer, combined¹. That means someone you know is likely suffering from chronic pain and is at risk of taking the wrong medication. Many pain medications can cause potentially fatal side effects in both children and adults, and some medications carry a high risk of addiction. If you or your loved ones are taking pain medication, it's important to know these risks up-front – especially if the medication is less likely to be an effective treatment for you.

The Harmonyx[®] Test for Pain identifies key information about your genetic response to pain medications, helping you make the best treatment decision possible.

The Harmonyx Test for Pain tests for the following medications*:

buprenorphine	hydrocodone	naloxone
buprenorphine/ naloxone	hydromorphone	naltrexone
carisoprodol	ibuprofen	naproxen
celecoxib	ketorolac	oxycodone
codeine	meloxicam	oxymorphone
diclofenac	meperidine	tramadol
fentanyl	methadone
	morphine

*Generic medications listed. For a full listing of brand-name pain medications covered on the test, visit harmonyxdiagnostics.com/pain.
