Letter from the Executive Director & Board Chair

Dear Friends,

What an incredibly exciting year it has been for the NYIC! As of this writing, we are on the verge of seeing the President announce his comprehensive immigration reform proposal, which is poised to take effect in 2015. Thank you for your efforts this past year, and is dedicated to our members, our supporters, and our partners for their continued to make real progress in reforms at many levels: helping win a major victory in New York State; and lifting up immigrants’ voices in the 2014 elections through our campaign. Along the way, we convened the first collaborative comprised of good government organizations, non-profit agencies, organizing groups and others. The NYIC’s Big City Vote campaign led the state in voter registration drives and/or immigration voter outreach efforts. In total, more than 333,000 individuals (non-profit staff, community members, legal experts, etc.) learned their children registered to vote since 1998 through the NYIC’s voter registration efforts. Attendees at NYIC’s immigration advocacy events, rallies, and trainings included 436. Attendees at health advocacy trainings and town hall meetings included 242. Participants at health advocacy training included 62. 333,000 Identity documents issued since 2011 through the NYIC’s Citizenship and Naturalization Services program, serving a total of 60% people. Attendees since 2011 at the NYIC’s Key to the City events included 1,000 people. Volunteers who have supported individuals through the New York Immigrant Assistance Consortium (NYIAC) through their outreach efforts referred more than 10,550 people. Immigrant parents who attended a college workshop and learning their children attended a college workshop learned their children attended a college workshop and learned their children attended a college workshop learned their children attended a college workshop.

What an incredibly exciting year it has been for the NYIC! As of this writing, we are on the verge of seeing the President announce long-awaited administrative relief that will potentially open the door for 3 million unauthorized individuals to stay in the United States legally. This major step has been long in coming, a triumph for immigrants’ rights advocates who have worked tirelessly to see a President take this critical step. Others may see it as a step too small, but I see it as an opportunity to build on and sustain the momentum of the last several years.

But we've been up to much more than that. Throughout 2014, we've been working with community partners, organizing campaigns, and convening leaders to discuss how to reach and support unauthorized individuals. We've engaged in advocacy campaigns on critical issues like immigration policy reform; ensuring that immigrants can get affordable and quality health care; and lifting up immigrants’ voices in the 2014 elections through the New York Immigrant Assistance Consortium campaign. Along the way, we convened the first Immigrants Vote!

What an incredible year it has been for the NYIC! The New York Immigrant Assistance Consortium, bringing together 300 community leaders to discuss how to level and take even bigger ones in 2015.
What an incredibly exciting year it has been for the NYIC! As of this writing, we are on the verge of seeing the President announce long-awaited administrative relief that will potentially open the door for non-citizen families with vital consular identity documents, legal work permits and permanent residence status to work legally. This major victory has been the culmination of a two-year-long effort to ensure that up to a quarter of a million New Yorkers can walk through the door to the American Dream.

Our patience has also been rewarded with the most comprehensive legal services on the City and State level in support of our members. The NYIC’sйn hospital program is a direct result of the tireless efforts of Chairs Pat Young and Carla Lee along with the support of our partner, the United Hospital Fund.

NYIC’sйn law firms have been busy this year as well. The legal victories we have been able to achieve through the Concerns Training Institute, providing educational programs and resources on legal rights, helping our clients to access the legal system and our new document preparation service for New Yorkers applying for New York City and State licenses have all contributed to keep our clients out of the legal room of the court.

NYIC’sйn staff and Board members have been working with the New York City Council Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito and the Mayor’s Office on various projects that have impacted the immigrant community in New York City. NYIC’sйn students have also been actively engaged in the political process, including our students’ role in the New York State Youth Assembly that was held this past year at the United Nations.

NYIC’sйn more than 200 participants in the Mayor’s Office’sйn diversity conference to coordinate broad legal services on the City and State level, which has been an invaluable opportunity to connect our communities with key decision-makers.

The NYIC’sйn Board of Directors and staff are dedicated to our mission of ensuring that all New Yorkers have equal access to opportunity and to providing the best possible support to our members. We will continue to work tirelessly to achieve these goals in the years to come.

Steven Choi, executive director of the New York Immigration Coalition (NYIC), has been a key figure in advocating for immigrant rights in New York. Through their outreach efforts, NYIC aims to make legal assistance more accessible to undocumented immigrants. They collaborate with 70 adult education and legal groups to provide legal assistance and expand adult education opportunities.

Advocates are pushing for the renewal of programs that protect undocumented residents without permanent residence from deportation after traffic stops. The NYIC, working with the New York City Municipal ID Card Program, has issued over 14,334 consular IDs to help vulnerable communities access the ID safely. In January 2015, the card will be rolled out with multiple benefits, including access to libraries, municipal buildings, opening bank accounts, and more. Throughout 2014, the NYIC worked on the New York City Municipal ID Card program, providing legal screenings and referrals, adult education services, and financial assistance to immigrants.

Immigrant advocates in New York have been responding to the challenges posed by the state’s recent refugee program. The NYIC is leading the citywide outreach component of this program, offering support to immigrants and workers, DREAMers, family members, and supporters. The NYIC’s 2014 Immigrant Equality Agenda includes various initiatives, such as pooling money in the state budget for the implementation of the Municipal ID Card Program.

The NYIC’s Key to the City Program aims to honor leaders who have contributed to the immigrant community. Honored individuals include Robert Morgenthau, Rockefeller Group Vice President, Chief Legal Officer; Eliseo Medina, Secretary-Treasurer, SEIU; and Christian M. Navarro, Assistant District Attorney for Queens County. These leaders have helped in local communities and contribute to the legal services and education efforts for immigrants.

In 2014, the NYIC held several events to celebrate immigrant advocacy. On March 18th, the NYIC held the Key to the City Program to celebrate the one-year anniversary. On June 9th, the New York Voter Drive was held to raise awareness about the importance of voter registration. This year, the NYIC’s 2014 Immigrant Equality Agenda includes various initiatives such as pooling money in the state budget for the implementation of the Municipal ID Card Program.

NY: Provide Public Support for Immigrant Youth

Bill into law on on 3/22/14

Since 2011 the NYIC continues work with ONA and calls on the Governor to intensify its efforts to hold Congress accountable to their inaction, coordinated by the New York Immigration Coalition, holding its inaugural conference "IMMIGRANT ASSISTANCE CONSORTIum" New York Immigrant Assistance Consortium, which organized this conference, runs a government-funded program to train local grassroots advocates who are not attorneys.

April 10th.

According to the New York Immigration Coalition, the measure… will improve this initiative. The NYIC quickly formed a new dyad, the New York Unaccompanied Youth (NYUY), to bring a "New York Unaccompanied Youth Action Network," to support for pressing issues including immigration, and calls on the Governor to intensify its efforts to hold Congress accountable to their inaction, coordinated by the New York Immigration Coalition, holding its inaugural conference "IMMIGRANT ASSISTANCE CONSORTIum" New York Immigrant Assistance Consortium, which organized this conference, runs a government-funded program to train local grassroots advocates who are not attorneys.

The Coalition has released its own ‘2014 Immigrant Equality Agenda’ containing ten policy items that advocates will continue to push for in New York. The 2014 Immigrant Equality Agenda also responded to Governor Andrew Cuomo's State of the State speech.

The Coalition will continue to advocate for policies that protect all New Yorkers, including the millions of New Yorkers who are living in the country without legal status. The Coalition is particularly focused on expanding state financial aid to students regardless of immigration status. While NYS DREAM failed to pass this year, the Coalition is now lobby[ing] for the passage of the DREAM Act, a federal bill that would provide a pathway to citizenship for young people who arrived in the United States as children.
